These are the front pages of an inuniverse data sheet (newspaper) that goes out across the sector.

Written in а slightly journalistic style whether you can believe all you read it up to you.

You will also find that the important news often gets regulated to the margins to make way for the more crowd-pleasing articles sporting events or music concerts. (Just like in real life.)

The idea is to amuse you and give you some extra content for your scavenger games.

The advert at the bottom of each page will likely have enough game rule information in it that you can buy and use the equipment ingame for your character.

SINGLE PAGE

This is important!

Each release of the Frontier Times is only the front page of the in-universe paper.

That means that each page you see in this collected edition is the front page of a different edition of the data sheet.

Sorry, but when it says 'see more on pg 43' there is no 43. I know, mean of us, but we don't have the time to write the whole fake newspaper!

The pages are numbered but not dated (because we haven't decided on our in-universe calendar yet) but read in number order and you will see news stories start, rise and ebb away.

RACE FEVER!

Race fever is running high across the sector as the contestant list has finally been released for the 398th yacht race. With only two solar weeks to go before the start we have a full breakdown inside but the top news is that Star Marshal Johnny 'Comet' McQueen will be the official adjudicator this year.

Star Marshall McQueen is a local legend having been instrumental in brokering the peace deal with the Salurian Clans who held a historical claim on the sector before the human empire moved in. We hope to bring you an exclusive interview with him just as soon as his people returns any of our many messages.

LAUNCHED!

After an unprecedented delay due to fears of pirate activity along the course and the mysterious assassination attempt on Star Marshal Johnny 'Comet' McQueen the 398th yacht race is finally underway!

Initial timing cams confirm that the exsalurian-fighter-pilotace G'Rak is in the lead with the Zuza pilot Mora in surprise second place.

Fans will remember that Mora only just qualified with the lowest recorded trial time. We can only assume she's spent the last six cycles doing some serious training or engine tweaking for her to hold such a position.

All could change though as the race enters the Van Broom belt for the second leg.

And remember race fans, don't copy those sweet racing moves when flying over populated planets or you might get shot down by the orbital defence systems. Don't say we didn't warn you.

RACE DISASTER AVERTED!

The solar yacht race nearly ended earlier today in disaster when the passenger liner Solar Queen lost power and drifted into the race lanes.

The salurian pilot G'Rak performed a last minute brake and burn manoeuvre to dodge the drifting vessel whilst the zuza pilot Mora who was in second place, abandoned her race to stay with the stricken liner, broadcasting a collision warning.

We understand that race officials are debating how to put her back into the race, potentially at the next transit point.

Questions are being asked why G'Rak's didn't stop and his team are yet to issue a statement.

For our analysis, see page 47.

RACING LATEST

The solar yacht race rushes towards an epic climax with two pilots in close contention for a win after G'Rak was disqualified for 'actions unbefitting a spacefarer' when he failed to stop and aid the Solar Queen, a civilian vessel. (As reported last issue.)

The solurian government has lodged a protest but sources close to Star Marshall McQueen say he is unlikely to rescind his decision.

This leaves this year's surprise star Mora (zuza) and Mondragol 'the shadow' (human) neck and neck. As per his usual racing style, Mondragol is shadowing Mora and refusing to take the lead.

Will that change when they enter the notorious solar chicane? Race fans will remember that last year, four vessels were destroyed by solar flares whilst trying to skim too close to the celestial giant. Naturally, if that happens we will bring you pictures and analysis!

Speaking of pictures, our social research bots have uncovered some very uncovered pictures of racing ace Mora in her private time. For more, see page 3 [age verification required]. [Legal Citation: 6996 Fair usage rights of private media apply.]

In a stunning climax to the 398th yacht race, Mondragol again proved why he is the racer to beat with a spectacular display of piloting that saw him gravity hop off a solar flare to beat the zuza Mora in a neck-and-neck race to the finish.

Race fans couldn't have asked for more with an assassination attempt on Star Marsh McQueen, disqualifications for not aiding ships in peril and a hair-raising finish.

Also, the Lucky Star passenger cruiser that was booked by avid race fans to watch the final leg has, at the time of writing, vanished without contact. We assume it is just a result of the unusual solar activity.

Remember, we pay a premier for personal accounts and especially for real pictures of events, before the authorities impose taste filters.

On the mantid homeworld of Tyx Prime, hive prime elections ended in several districts turmoil in winning candidates were jumped upon by their rivals and eaten alive.

Perhaps most surprising of all is that after a re-ballot was called, the killers, despite being in custody, were each voted in for the position of Hive Prime in their respective districts.

A spokesman for one of the winning candidates pointed out that eating a rival within a day of their winning electoral office was allowed under mantid tradition. They also added ábout several comments human politics which are too rude for the front page (see inside editorial pg 42).

The spokesperson then ended with 'Sneckwits in glass pods shouldn't throw grixx'.

We hear the alliance galactic are speaking with the Tyx Prime world government check the elections were by the book.
